

Teaching Orientation for CUMC Faculty

Wednesday, August 30

Hammer Health Sciences LL103 (Medical Center Campus)

At the start of each semester, the Center for Teaching and Learning provides faculty with an orientation that offers practical, evidence-based strategies faculty can implement on the first day of class, and introduces new faculty to the Columbia teaching culture. You might be brand new to teaching or you might be more “seasoned,” but either way we’ll get you off to a great start. Register today at bit.ly/orientationfaculty.

11:30 am - 12:45 pm	Teaching and Learning at Columbia University: Welcome and Faculty Panel
12:45 pm - 1:00 pm	Break
1:00 pm - 2:00 pm	Learner-Centered Teaching at Columbia
2:00 pm - 2:30 pm	A Conversation with the Learners: Students Share Their Most Engaging Experiences at Columbia
2:30 pm - 2:45 pm	Break
2:45 pm - 3:45 pm	Concurrent Sessions: High-Impact Strategies for the First Week and Beyond <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Student Engagement: Day One and Beyond • Teaching and Learning with Canvas • Tools for Grading and Feedback
3:45 pm - 4:30 pm	Creating Community: Wine, Cheese, and Peer Mentoring